

Unauthorized Dealer Alert

Unfortunately, every industry, online or off, has its share of unscrupulous businesses. The Skincare industry is no different. The attraction to profit from selling high-end products means that some retailers/merchants that compete for your business in online Google/Bing/Yahoo search ads or even on major e-commerce sites like Amazon.com, eBay.com, Walmart.com, Sears.com, Overstock.com, Jet.com or Drugstore.com are unauthorized merchants.

What does this mean to you? It means that when you buy from one of these retailers, you run the risk of buying non-warranted, inferior, outdated or even fake products! These retailers are supplied in many ways, including by well-funded, gray-market goods wholesalers that deceptively bring the product into the United States from overseas countries where product piracy and infringement laws are lax. It's technically called Product Diversion. Obviously, this means that the use of these products can be, at a minimum, ineffective and at maximum, potentially harmful. These products are applied to your face and they're absorbed through your skin. You wouldn't buy your food from a pirate, would you? So, don't take a chance on your skin!
